In English, the children have been reading 'That Rabbit Belongs to Emily Brown.' They have been learning about proper nouns. In Maths, the children have been learning how to do addition and subtraction. They have been learning the 5 times tables.

Next week, in English they will be continuing to read 'That Rabbit Belongs to Emily Brown.' They will be looking at punctuation and capitalisation.

In Maths, they will be looking at division in relation to inverse, doubling and word problems. We will be revising the 2 times tables and the 5 times tables.

As our focus for this half term has been looking at Hinduism for RE, for homework we would like the children to look at places of worship. We would like them to label, what can be found in the Mandir / Temple and explain why a temple is an important place for Hindus to visit. Also to research on what happens inside a temple, e.g how puja is offered,
